

WINNERS OF DGAP ART CONTEST

To select the main picture for our V. European Conference of Analytical Psychology, the DGAP organised a small art contest. Being faced with the pandemic, we wanted to spread some positive energy and simultaneously enable aspiring artists to share and spread their art among analytical psychologists throughout Europe. In this slideshow we present the winners and their artwork. Some of the artwork can be purchased.

Daniela Wolfer wrote her master's thesis in 2020 on the "Artistic Relevance of the Dionysian and Apollonian". Some of the selected works move in this bipolar field of tension. Ambivalent means are used that call chance, then capture and tame it. The dreamlike and the imaginative.

Most of the work was created especially for the congress in 2021. The overall selection of the presented works also gives an insight into the extensive work cycles, such as the current large-format oil painting "Life is for Living", "When I go Vegas I and II", "Worlds World".
